STORMS TAKING HEAVY TOLL

Fishing Fleet Crews Drown In Heavy Seas Along Spanish And Portuguese Coasts; Many Ships Seeking Shelter

MADRID, Jan. 28.—Storms raging along the Spanish and Portuguese coasts are taking a heavy toll in men and ships of fishing fleets, according to dispatches received here today.

Eleven were drowned when the fishing smack Carmen foundered near Vigo, dispatches from that city stated.

Grave fears were also held for the safety of eleven men aboard the Celia, another fishing smack which has been missing for several days.

The storms were reported to be continuing violently. The harbor of Vigo is filled with vessels which sought its shelter and are now unable to leave.

Twelve bodies, believed to be those of the crew of the Danish steamer, a vessel which foundered in December, have been washed ashore at Bayona, according to reports from there.

At San Lucar De Barmeda, the storm is continuing with undiminished fierceness. Several fishing boats are missing there.

Considerable damage on land was reported along the Portuguese coast. Two vessels, the Italian freighter Dottore Paolo and the Spanish steamer Elise reached the harbor of Lisbon in a severely battered condition. Each had lost two seamen.

FERROL, Spain, Jan. 28.—Terrible storms continued to rage off the coast of Spain today. Several small fishing boats were sunk, but all members of the crews were rescued. The Ferrol wireless station was damaged and the harbor was closed until the storm abated.

FEDERAL OFFICERS UNCOVER LARGE RUM RUNNING BUSINESS

Former Rum Runners Identify Bosses Of Wet Syndicate

CLEVELAND, Jan. 28.—Using information supplied by two admitted former rum runners as a lever, federal authorities today attempted to pry off the cover of a large alleged rum running syndicate which has been operating in the waters of Lake Erie.

The information was revealed yesterday at the hearing of Daniel J. Coughlin, Toledo and Pittsburgh, one of the reputed liquor syndicate chiefs, by Harley Bass and Ollie Bass, former Port Clinton, O., fishermen. They identified Coughlin as one of the "bosses" who helped them unload a cargo of liquor at Cedar Point last fall from a lugger to a truck.

Coughlin, who was arrested here last November with James A. Courtney of Detroit, and "Handsome" Larry Davidson of Cleveland, was held for the Toledo grand jury today under $7,500 bond on charges of violating the prohibition laws. Courtney disappeared following his arrest. Bonds amounting to $8,500 for the two counts against him, have been forfeited.

Bass and Zess testified yesterday in Coughlin's hearing before U. S. Commissioner Martin J. Monahan, that they were employed by Courtney to run liquor from Amersburg, Ont., to Cedar Point, and Toledo. They received from $5 to $50 for each load, they declared.

Courtney, who is said to have paid $2,500 to four members of the grand jury last summer to let a load of rum go through, was reported to be in Canada.

CUYAHOGA COUNTY EXAMINES DRIVERS

CLEVELAND, Jan. 28.—Rigid examination of the fifty-two school buses in Cuyahoga County was started today by R. R. Weygant, deputy commissioner of motor vehicles. Drivers of the buses were to be given mental and physical examinations.

The bus inspections began today in Berea where a week ago to-morrow nine children and a bus driver were killed when the school bus in which they were riding was rammed and demolished by a New York Central train.

PRAISES STATIC

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 28.—Radio static was praised and not condemned by James Newland here today. The static frightened away two thugs, who were about to rob Newland late yesterday.

He told police that two armed men entered his grocery and ordered him to put up his hands. He complied and while they were searching the store for loot, Newland managed to open the door which leads into the living room of his home. His wife had just turned on the radio.

As the dials reached into a pile of static, a noise, such as a machine-gun would make, emerged from the loud-speaker. The thugs pulled their caps down over their faces and fled, empty-handed.

SENATOR MORGAN IS CLEVELAND'S NEW CITY MANAGER NOW

Receives Nineteen Votes; Six Protest Votes Cast

CLEVELAND, Jan. 28.—State Senator Daniel E. Morgan is Cleveland's new city manager today.

Morgan was elected last night by the same city council that two weeks ago voted to oust his predecessor, William R. Hopkins. He received nineteen votes. Six "protest" votes were cast—three for County Auditor John Zangerle, two for former City Manager Hopkins, and one for Law Director Harold H. Burton, who has been acting manager since Hopkins' suspension.

Enthusiastic demonstration tore through the council chambers upon Morgan's election. In accepting the appointment, Morgan pledged himself to give the manager plan a fair trial; to co-operate with city council and to give the city a business like and progressive administration.

After filing bond and taking oath of office, Morgan took over the city manager's office today in City Hall. His resignation as state senator was dispatched to Governor Myers Y. Cooper in Columbus yesterday.

Acceptance of congratulatory messages took up most of the new manager's time today, although he planned to give much thought to his cabinet appointments. With the exception of two officers, the remainder of the manager's cabinet was expected to remain intact.

Four Companies Are In Consolidation Of Industry

CLEVELAND, Jan. 28.—Shareholders were being notified today of the detailed terms by which four great mid-west steel companies will be welded together into the $335,000,000 New Republic Steel Corporation.

Companies involved in the consolidation are the Republic Iron and Steel Co., Central Alloy Steel Corp., Donner Steel Co., Inc., and the Bourne-Fuller Co.

The plan being put in the hands of the stockholders today is essentially one for an exchange of preferred and common stocks of the constituent companies for the preferred and common stocks of the new corporation which will be organized shortly to acquire all of the assets of the constituent companies.

Stockholders of the constituent companies may assent to the plan by depositing their stock by February 17.

Initial capitalization of the new Republic Steel Corporation, which, when consummated, will be the second largest independent steel producer in the country, will consist of $55,000,000 six per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock and 1,985,144 shares of no par common stock with a stated value of $167,725,688. In addition the corporation is to absorb $59,059,400 in bonds of the merging units and $5,000,000 six per cent preferred of subsidiary.

Present merger terms provide that holders of common stock in the various companies are entitled to receive new Republic common on the following basis:

Republic Steel—One share of new common for each share of Republic held.

Central Alloy—Four-ninths of one share new common for each share held.

Donner Steel—Five-twelfths of one share new common for each share held.

Bourne-Fuller—Ten-thirteenths of one share new common for each share held.

The Trumbull-Chiffs Furnace Company will be taken into the consolidation by exchange of its stock for old Republic common stock prior to the consummation of the merger.

MALONE WILL TAKE THIRD BRIDE

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Dudley Field Malone, noted American divorcee lawyer, today filed notice of his intended marriage to Miss Edna Louise Johnson, of Brooklyn, New York.

This will be Malone's third marriage. He was recently divorced from Doris Stevens, of Mahan, Nebraska, distinguished economist and feminist leader.

Miss Johnson, according to the notice, is 24 years of age. She was born in Minnesota.

"The wedding will take place at noon at the Prince's Row registry office," Malone told International News Service.

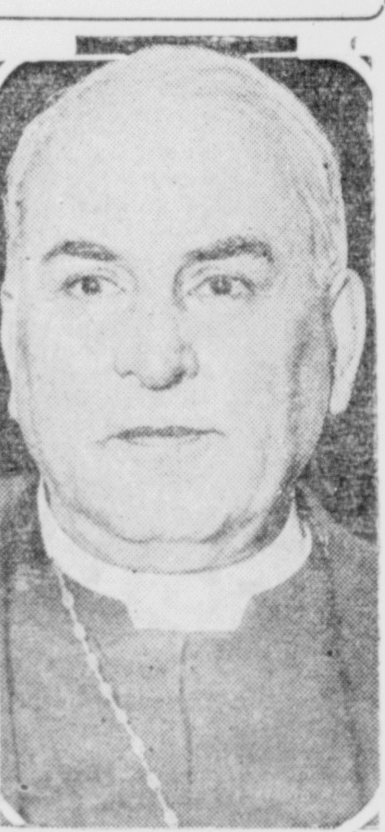

"It will be followed by a wedding breakfast at Claridge's," Malone said he had known Miss Johnson for some time, but news of the coming marriage came as a complete surprise. The divorce which parted the famous attorney from Miss Stevens was granted by the Paris courts only a few weeks ago.

FEAR REFUGEES ARE STARVING TO DEATH IN FLOOD SECTION

Silence Over Area Forbodes Disaster Is Belief

VINCENNES, Ind., Jan. 28.—Silence that forbodes disaster prevailed over sections of the southwestern Indiana flood region today, according to fliers and relief workers who fear many refugees may starve to death as they huddled in farmhouses surrounded by flood waters.

Red Cross officials directing relief work in the area have broadcast urgent appeals for assistance as the need for communication with isolated points grows more acute.

More than 500 persons in the area near the mouth of the Wabash River below Mt. Vernon are still cut off from food and supplies. Conditions in this community are appalling, according to aviators.

A general lack of smoke from homes in this area causes apprehension. Communities which formerly showed signs of activity now appear lifeless, the aviators report.

Airplanes using Vincennes as a base yesterday dropped food to forty families suffering from lack of food and fuel near the White River. Their plight was only learned after a man and his son made their way over treacherous fields of ice and water.

"I got 'baccy for my pipe and wood for the fire and time for communion with the Lord," she told her would-be rescuers.

EDITOR IS DEAD

EATON, O., Jan. 28.—Funeral arrangements were completed here today for William A. Marsh, 55, Preble County newspaper man, and well-known correspondent for a number of Ohio newspapers, Marsh died at his home here yesterday after a brief illness.

SON OF FORMER PRESIDENT IS ASKED TO ACCOUNT FOR FUNDS

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 28.—An injunction suit, which asks that Colonel Webb C. Hayes, son of former President Rutherford B. Hayes, account for state funds which are alleged to have been spent illegally in connection with the Hayes homestead in Sandusky County, was on file in the Franklin County common pleas court here today.

The funds are said to have been illegally spent when the homestead of the former president was converted into a state museum. The suit was instituted by James Cameron, of Fremont, and asks for $250,000 exemplary damages.

The suit charges that Hayes misappropriated state funds by using them for other purposes than was allowed by the state legislature. The museum project was started twenty years ago, and Colonel Hayes is asked to give a full accounting for all money which has been appropriated since then.

AMERICANS DEMAND PLENARY SESSION; PLANNED THURSDAY

Terminates Secret Debate; Will Urge Cruiser Cuts

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Apparently becoming weary of the interminable Franco-Italian debate within the secret "big five" meetings, the American viewpoint was thrust suddenly into the picture this morning with the result that a plenary session of the naval disarmament conference was called for Thursday, not withstanding the fact that the parley as yet has no agenda to work upon.

The plenary session was voted on a motion made by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, chief of the American delegation.

The practical result of this unusual procedure is to force the discussion into the open, for it was also decided on American initiative that the press will be admitted to Thursday's session.

The entire army of newspapermen present, numbering about 300, naturally cannot possibly be crowded into Queen Anne's drawing room, where the session will be held, but each country will have adequate representation.

The first task of the Thursday meeting will be to ratify the selection of the big five's permanent steering committee, to hold office during the tenure of the conference. This committee will continue the discussions regarding a concrete agenda, which will be framed as the parley goes along.

It was pointed out that the alphabetical arrangement of procedure will give the United States a decided edge if it chooses to mold the progress of the conference as this country is listed as America, and thus takes the floor before the others.

Because of this fact, the American delegates will be able to bring up the subject of cruiser cuts before battleships are discussed.

Thursday's plenary session, coupled with the presence of the press, is designed partly to curb the growing criticism over the slowness of the conference and the apparent lack of progress since the brilliant opening in the House of Lords just a week ago today. There is some question as to how the press representation will be worked out, but it is likely a few newspapermen from each nation will be admitted to the conference, while the others listen in by means of an amplifier arrangement in the big press workroom.

No official explanation was made as to the reason for calling the plenary session, but it was beginning to be painfully evident that little progress was recorded at secret meetings where all felt free to bring up any questions they desired.

Forcing matters into the open is expected to put the brake on some questions which in American eyes are extraneous and have little bearing on the primary purpose of the conference, which is to limit auxiliary fleets.

Meanwhile the private discussions are to continue among the heads of the delegations. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald is to meet the Japanese and French delegates at different hours this afternoon at his chambers in the House of Commons, where the parliamentary situation is at present keeping him occupied.

It is understood that the plenary session will consider the appointment of a committee to furnish a report to the full conference on methods of reaching naval limitation, either by global or categorical allotments. Premier MacDonald discussed the present progress of the parley at a luncheon with Secretary Stimson at the Ritz Hotel today.

GOVERNOR SEEKING RELIEF UNTIL NEXT LEGISLATURE

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 28.—Governor Myers Y. Cooper today asked Attorney General Gilbert Bettman for an opinion on what may be done to relieve the situation which exists in twenty-seven counties in Ohio, due to the suspension of payment of state insurance to public employees and dependents of deceased public employees. A relief is sought by the governor until the next session of the state legislature in 1931, when definite steps may be taken.

The state industrial commission suspended payment of the state insurance, pursuant to a recent decision of the Ohio supreme court, because of overdrifts, which total $217,092.16.

In these twenty-seven counties, the commission found, disbursements had exceeded premiums which were paid in by counties, townships, municipalities and school districts for the protection of their employees and beneficiaries.

Governor Cooper took his first steps to remedy the situation at a cabinet last night, which was also attended by Wellington T. Leonard, chairman of the industrial commission.

DETROIT POLICE ARREST SEVEN AND FRUSTRATE ROBBERY PLOT

DETROIT, Jan. 28.—One man was wounded, two police officers narrowly escaped death and seven men were in jail today as the result of a gang round-up in Detroit suburbs.

Police believe they frustrated a plan to rob the Old Soldiers' and Sailors' Home at Sandusky, O., of from $5,000 to $10,000 worth of jewelry, $5,000 to $10,000 worth of narcotics and from $10,000 to $40,000 in cash.

The round-up was the result of a letter from an unknown man in St. Louis to Cyril Hansen, former patrolman, which fell into police hands. The letter told of the burglary opportunities offered by the soldiers' and sailors' home.

"The place has never been robbed because no one knows that there is any dough there," the letter read. After describing the building and the location of three safes, the unknown writer said: "Two doctors are upstairs. You go up and shake them down and tie them up."

Police are attempting to connect four of the men arrested with the murder of August Frederick, bartender, in an alleged speakeasy here November 21 of last year.

A chase, revolver shots and an attempt by the gangsters to shoot officers featured the round-up. Bernard Nowicki and Alfred Kreis, detectives, yesterday went to a furniture store which, police say, was a speakeasy. They had received information that men wanted for the robbery of a meat market might be found there.

Accompanying the officers were two state troopers. In the arrest of four men in the store, one of them pressed a revolver against Nowicki's side. Nowicki knocked it away, and the fight started.

Hansen was arrested when officers saw him, a woman and another man riding in an automobile. They were ordered to halt. Their orders disregarded, the policemen shot one of the tires off the car. A chase followed after which the three surrendered.

CAUSE IS OBSCURED WHEN GROUND CREWS DESTROY WRECKAGE

County Officials Investigate Removal Of All Evidence

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 28.—There was little wreckage left today to tell the story of the horrible death of five persons in a flaming Travelair cabin monoplane of the Central Airlines, subsidiary of Universal Aviation Corporation.

Investigators arrived at the scene of the crash near Fairfax airport here today found that crews of the airline had destroyed the wreckage of the plane and had attempted to conceal the crater made by the flaming ship as it struck the ground.

The dead are: Dyke Laudeman, Kansas City, Kas., pilot.

William Flynn, Kansas City, Mo. R. McKinnon, 1360 E. 60th St., Chicago, St. Louis manager of Robbins and Myers Sales, Inc., Springfield, Ohio.

James H. Eggert, Chicago, music publisher.

Miss Margaret Dice, St. Joseph, Mo.

Pending the verdict of an official investigation, there was disagreement today as to the cause of the crash. The plane, according to witnesses, made a wide circle at an altitude of 400 feet above the airport preliminary to landing about 5:30 p. m. last evening.

Suddenly it sidestepped and plunged like dead weight toward the earth. As it neared the earth in its fatal plunge, fire broke out. A terrific explosion occurred as the ship struck the ground.

The seared remains of the dead were found in a grim huddle at the front of the cabin, killed from the impact of the crash.

As quickly as the bodies were removed, a hastily-mustered crew of pilots and mechanics from the Universal Airlines and Central Airlines, began removing all evidence of the accident, savagely fighting off reporters and photographers as they worked.

The smoking frame of the ship was torn apart with axes and saws. Within an hour, all evidence of the wreck had been strewn about the corn field where the plane crashed. Where the ship had plowed up the soft soil a bonfire was built.

Only a few scattered reminders remained as evidence of the death toll. A woman's comb, a magazine, a box of cold remedy and a broken package of cigarettes were scattered around where they had fallen from the clothing of the four men and the young woman who met death.

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Jan. 28.—Wyandotte County officials began an investigation today into the removal of evidence of last night's crash of a Central Airlines cabin monoplane which killed five persons.

CANTON, O., Jan. 28.—The jury of six men and six women trying the bribery case of Albert L. Thayer, New Castle, Pa., architect, resumed deliberations today after having deliberated more than five hours last night without reaching a decision.

The case was given to the jury late yesterday afternoon. At 10:30 o'clock last night, however, when no verdict was forthcoming, the jury was locked up for the night.

Thayer is charged with having solicited a $5,000 bribe from George F. S. Melbourne, general contractor, after having "juggled" moleculum specifications in the million-dollar Molly Stark tuberculosis sanatorium.

Brickles has been fined once before in federal court and has paid a number of fines on liquor charges here.

YOUTH CONFERENCE PLAN OF LUTHERANS FOR COMING APRIL

"Youth with a vision is youth with a mission," is the slogan of one hundred and fifty young people, laymen, and ministers of the Ohio, Michigan, and Indiana Synods of the United Lutheran Church in America who are working together for the First Lutheran Youth Conference to be held at Wittenberg College, Springfield, April 4, 5 and 6.

This conference is to be an assembly for youth, planned by youth. Lutheran students and young people are chairmen of the eight major committees and constitute a larger part of the group of workers. Five hundred youth of the churches of the four states, between the ages of 15 and 25 are being sought to attend this unique conference.

The entire roster of church agencies in the territory of these three synods are co-operating in planning the conference. The Synods of Ohio, Indiana, and Michigan, the Luther Leagues in these states, the Women's Missionary Societies of these Synods, Wittenberg College and Hama Divinity School are all helping to make the first of what is hoped to be a series of youth conferences for this section of the United Lutheran Church.

The conference plans to give youth a complete picture of what its church is in terms of organization, program, purpose and belief. High officials of the Synods of the United Lutheran Church will be introduced to delegates. An elaborate display of the work of each board and organization of the United Lutheran Church in America will present a panoramic view of what constitutes the church at work. Youth will be informed and challenged to serve in the varied program of the modern church.

The display will emphasize the appreciation and use of the best in Lutheran liturgy, music, appointments, architecture and literature. Charts showing the program of every auxiliary of the church will suggest opportunities for active service. Competent guides will interpret the display booths to small groups of delegates.

The Lutheran churches of Springfield, and the students of Wittenberg will be hosts to the conference. The spacious auditorium and field house in Wittenberg's new $400,000 physical education building will house the exhibit and conference sessions.

Discussion hours will allow youth to speak and ask questions with adult visiting delegates assuming a "silent role." Preceding each discussion hour, an inspiring and authoritative speaker will guide the thoughts of the delegates with challenging appeal.

Rev. Paul E. Keyser, Marysville, O., the youngest member of the Ohio Synod is general chairman of the conference. The presidents of the Synods of Ohio, Indiana and Michigan, and representatives from other co-operating agencies constitute the Central Committee.

Seven other committees are working under the leadership of students and young people from the synods. Thomas Lansberry, 730 N. Fountain Ave., Springfield, is chairman of publicity and Edwin Bracher, Keller Hall, Springfield, chairman of registration. No definite persons representing the local Lutheran Church have been selected. No less than two registered delegates and two "visitors" from Xenia will attend.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

FORCED TO LEAVE COUNTY JAIL

SHERIFF Ohmer Tate has often found it necessary to incarcerate law violators in the County Jail but Monday he had the unique experience of forcing a prisoner to leave the jail against his will.

The prisoner who did not desire to be freed was Ray W. Barton, serving out a fine of $100 and costs for violation of the liquor laws. Barton had forty more days to serve but a friend, whose name was not divulged, came to his rescue Monday and paid the balance due on his fine.

Probably not wishing to be under obligations to his benefactor Barton at first refused to leave the jail but later reluctantly said farewell to the county bastille.

ARRANGE SPEAKERS AT FARM INSTITUTE HELD AT BELLBROOK

Otho H. Pollock, Delaware, and Mrs. C. R. Milnor, Pickerington, O., will be the state speakers at the Farmers' Institute to be held at Bellbrook Wednesday and Thursday, January 29 and 30. A complete program has been arranged for both days.

Mr. Pollock has for a dozen years been in demand as an instructor in animal husbandry for extension schools and farmers' institutes and has served as secretary of the Delaware County Percheron Breeders' Association since its organization in 1913. His subjects during the local institute sessions will include: "Real Values," "Community Livestock Association," "Why Are We Farmers?" "Humoring the Dairy Cow," and "Economic Pork Production."

Mrs. Milnor, declared to be well qualified for the work of institute lecturer, is a farm woman who has won recognition because of outstanding work in several fields. She assists in operating a successful poultry farm and one of Ohio's credited hatcheries, and personally looks after the brooding of about 3,000 chicks each season.

Mrs. Milnor will discuss the following subjects: "Our Boys, Our Girls, Our Schools," "Care of the Baby Chicks from the Incubator to the Laying House," "Mother, Home and Child," "The Country Child's Opportunities," and "The Hope of the Future."

In conjunction with the Institute there will be a poster contest open to the high school and grades of Agriculture Twp. schools, a cake baking contest open to the women of the township only and a corn show open to exhibitors of the township.

A feature of the closing session Thursday night will be the presentation of a play entitled "The Deacon Slips," sponsored by the Welfare Club. Dinner will be served by the home economics class.

WILBERFORCE OFFICIALS SCOUT REPORTS OF SUICIDE ATTEMPTS

Officials of Wilberforce University are inclined to place small credence in reports that two students attempted to end their lives Sunday night and Monday morning because of homesickness and despondency.

An attempt to strangle himself by pulling a necktie tightly about his throat was alleged to have been made by William Jones, 17, Cleveland, sophomore in the academy, at 1:30 a. m. Monday in his room in O'Neill Hall. Awakened by the struggles of the boy, Robert Neal, Cincinnati, a roommate, was reported to have cut the tightly bound tie from his neck. It was said that Jones explained his action by declaring he wanted to go home.

LABOR SITUATION IN SOUTHERN MILLS EXPLAINED TO CLUB

"Conditions in the Southern Textile Industry" were explained by Dr. W. M. Leiserson, Antioch College, Yellow Springs, from the labor viewpoint before sixty men attending the Men's Club dinner at the First Presbyterian Church Monday evening.

The speaker laid a background of economic conditions prevailing in the textile industry throughout the nation, contrasting conditions in the progressive northern states with the newly-awakened, industrial southern states. The conditions came to the speaker through a former Antioch student who is now personnel director of one of the large rayon mills in the South.

There are two outstanding demands from employees now on strike—first, the abolition of the "stretch out" system and second the recognition of the union, the speaker pointed out. Inefficient employers rather than inefficient employees caused the strike, the speaker said, and gave as an example the story of one mill owner who felt a saving could be effected by the "stretch out" system.

Under this plan skilled workmen are assigned more looms as their share of the day's work, thus reducing the number of employees. This manufacturer deliberately educated his employees up to the point of introduction of the new system, and it worked without friction. Inefficient employers saw the saving gained and introduced the same plan to their mills within two or three weeks and without preparation. The situation resulted in strike trouble, the speaker said.

"Agitators are not to blame for the labor troubles any more than the human body is responsible for sickness," said Dr. Leiserson, "except that it is susceptible to germs when not in the right condition. The same is true of labor, for agitators are always about but when labor is in good condition they do no harm. When labor conditions are bad, then the agitators get in their work."

The speaker painted a picture of southern owner paternalism previous to the recent expansion of the industry. The town and homes were owned by the mill owner, and there existed a spirit of mutual dependency between the owner and the employees. Absentee ownership led to abuses of old conditions, so that labor was disturbed. Relief work necessary among employees evicted from their homes when they went on strike is tremendous, the speaker said. He urged his hearers to get both sides of the situation before judging either harshly and to read excerpts from a recently published article by a young minister who went into the area for information and was arrested as a spy or agitator.

The committee in charge of the dinner was composed of W. A. Meikle, chairman; P. B. Yockey, H. E. Kiernan, Dr. J. R. McCormick and Gowsdy Williamson. Mrs. W. H. Tilford sang several spirituals as a feature of the entertainment. The Rev. Mr. Tilford led in singing and directed an appropriate recognition of the birthday of late President McKinley. Mrs. H. C. Armstrong presided at the piano and a committee of the Ladies Aid Society served a chicken dinner.

Dr. Paul D. Espey, chairman of the Men's Club, appointed the following committee to make arrangements for the next meeting: Marcus McCallister, chairman; L. F. Clark, Erskine Winter, George Perrell and Prof. Robert Hawes.

When Vicks introduced the better method of treating colds externally it was especially appreciated by mothers because it avoids "dosing," which so often disturbs children's delicate digestions.

HOUSE RANSACKED WHILE OWNERS AT THEATER

While Benjamin L. Chambliss, former city policeman, and his wife were attending the first showing of the motion picture entitled "The Gold Diggers" between 6:10 and 8:30 o'clock Monday night "gold diggers" ransacked their home at 229 W. Market St., stealing between $8 and $10 in small change and a valuable Smith and Weston revolver prized by Chambliss because he carried it while on the police force twenty-five years ago.

A skeleton key is believed to have been used to gain entrance because Mr. and Mrs. Chambliss found every door securely locked upon their return home after the show.

The entire house, however, had been ransacked in their absence. The revolver was taken from a drawer in the chiffonier in a bedroom. Mrs. Chambliss had left her pocketbook on a book case in the sitting room and the money was removed from a small purse it contained. The purse was replaced. A small sum of money was taken from a drawer in the same room.

The intruders had first taken the precaution to draw all the window blinds in order that their movements could not be detected accidentally.

SIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

LOVE AND HATE—These things I command you, that ye love one another. If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you.—John 15:17, 18.

ATTACKING THE ARMY

The attack recently made by Congressman Collins of Mississippi on the Organized reserves and Reserve Officers' association has drawn from the association's president, Colonel Walter C. Cole, an open letter that sufficiently answers the Mississippian's specific allegations. The obvious purpose and spirit of his oratorical onslaught on the national military establishment deserves a wider rebuke. Collins claimed to be alarmed at the monetary cost of the army to the country. What he attempted to do was to arouse public feeling against an important component of the army and thus weaken the entire establishment upon which domestic tranquility, as well as security from foreign aggression, depends.

Against the Organized reserves Collins brought the full force of horse, foot and artillery shot with untruths. They were described as forming "the most powerful political wing of the whole army." They were scattered throughout the country and even in the government departments and thus became "a splendid sales force for military expansion." The chief excuse for their existence was "their great propaganda value." The Reserve Officers' association, Collins declared, was "a very powerful political influence." Citizens' military training camps and military drill in the public schools then drew his fire. The formation of a girls' battalion in an Omaha high school furnished the ammunition for a poetical description of what would happen to the country "with women in the army," with which Collins entertained his colleagues at the risk of a clash with the Watch and Ward society if the Congressional Record ever gets as far north as Boston.

The fact, of course, is that the Organized reserves constitute a recognized branch of the army under the National Defense act. They are in no sense political. The Reserve Officers' association is their mouthpiece; and it never has asked anything for its own members or for any other purpose than promoting the object of the National Defense act, according to its president. The existence of such a body is a salutary antidote to the pacifism with which a large element of our population has become infected. The reserves are part of the scheme for "a citizenry trained in arms," which is the only safe alternative to a vastly larger standing army. They may not appreciate that down in Mississippi, where they have a governor who boasts that with ten men he could run every bootlegger out of the state. The rest of the country does.

A CONFERENCE ON LIPSTICKS

The fuss London papers are making over the amount of cosmetics used by the stenographers attached to the American delegation to the London conference shows that they can be quite as provincial as some of their contemporaries on this side of the water. They jump at conclusions without considering causes and conditions.

The climate of England has cosmetic properties absent from the climate of many parts of the much more extensive United States. As a rule, American girls use rouge to obtain the effect nature gives their English sisters. The stenographers in Secretary Stimson's retinue may have put it on a little thicker in London, as a safeguard against the possible effects of a climate to which they were not accustomed. Whether they did or not they were painting their own faces, which in this country is regarded as their own business.

At the same time, a little hostile comment will not do them or other American women any harm. While some women who use artificial aids to nature in their facial hygiene in this country display excellent taste, some of them don't. The latter forget that the cosmetic ceiling is where makeup ceases to be a part of the complexion and becomes an object of attention in itself. They are happy in the mistaken belief that they have made themselves beautiful.

The American stenographers in London probably will learn something from their experience; and we take it, a number of reporters over there already have learned that use of a lipstick does not necessarily indicate that the user can be "dated" without an introduction. Something has come out of the London conference already.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

RESOLVING

"Resolve," said Emerson, "and you are free." He meant, of course, that once we clearly make up our minds to adopt a new policy, we are rid of the old encumbering chains that bound us to the discarded policy. To be sure, merely resolving is of no value except as it is accompanied by a consistent course of action. Matthew Arnold once wrote that "tasks are hours of insight willed can be through hours of gloom fulfilled."

And all this is not meant as a discussion of the ordinary, cheaply taken and cheaply dropped "New Year's resolution." What we are talking about is a decision or the adoption of a policy that is arrived at after calm, deliberate, thoughtful consideration of all the rewards and penalties involved.

"Resolve and you are free."

FREEDOM

In the minds of many people there is a vague desire for what they think of as "freedom." They want to be free to do what they like, say what they like, go where they like and yet the most vital freedom is the freedom of the mind. That is within the reach of all. You can acquire the freedom to think your thoughts and believe what you will. No man can take your soul away from you. Within the cultivated mind there are — or should be — castles to which you may always flee and rest, unprovoked and undisturbed.

CHANGING ATTITUDES

Many articles and books, too, are being written these days about the changing attitudes of the world—the people about us. We look upon what we conceive to be changing manners and changing morals and new behavior as though it were something imposed upon us by some power other than ourselves. We feel we are being pushed along by the crowd. We must go as others go because the main body of our friends is moving that way. The fact is that the only attitude that is important is our own. If we conceive of ourselves as free agents with the right, the privilege, and the courage to make our own decisions we need be little concerned for the flood tide of any new movement. After all, it is what we DO about things that is important, rather than what others think about them.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

"If all the people in the world stopped work for one day, what," wonders a Question Box correspondent, "would the result be?" A complete, world-wide, 24-hour suspension of work would be attended by an infinity of inconveniences, to say the least, especially at all great centers of population, where life is largely artificial—lights out, water cut off, no transportation, no communication, only cold food, every imaginable kind of trouble. If the stoppage were abrupt, it undoubtedly would be attended also by much tragedy. In primitive communities, however, the folks probably would return to their tasks after their holiday not much worse off. The loss of time would not be so serious that it could not speedily be made up for.

In Far Cathay

At what age do Chinese children reach maturity? Maturity is attained in China, normally, at about the same age as in western countries—which is to say, rather variably as to individuals, somewhere from 20 to 25. Chinese economic conditions do, however, force children into employment very young. Girls also are considered marriageable much younger than in the occident.

The American Flag

Has anyone the right to half staff the flag for a deceased mayor? I have rules for the flag's display, as adopted at a conference of patriotic organizations in Washington. Has anyone a right to display it otherwise? A city hall flag may be half-staffed with propriety upon the mayor's death, provided the rule is observed, of hoisting it momentarily to the peak beforehand and again before lowering for the day, as presumably indicated in the set of regulations mentioned.

Smarty

How high is up? The world's altitude champion (Willi Neuenhofer, Dessau, Germany, May 25, 1929) reported plenty of room still overhead at 41,794 feet, his record.

Origin of Icebergs

What is the origin of icebergs? Icebergs are sections broken off from glaciers, as these frozen rivers empty slowly into the sea.

French Agriculture

Is France a country of large land owners, or is it divided into small farms mostly? France has about 5,000,000 small farmers, the largest number, in proportion to its area and population, in the world.

Not the Same

Were Heracles and Heracles the same? No. Heracles was the chief national hero of ancient Hellas, whom we know by the Latinized name of Hercules. Heracles, surnamed Pionctus, was a Greek writer of the fourth century before Christ.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

STREET SCENE

He couldn't have been more than 12 years old and he was tugging at Pop's hand and looking up into Pop's eyes in a way that O.K'd Pop as a regular guy. They came at last to a pet shop, in the window of which seven ginger-colored pups of disturbed ancestry were scratching fleas. "That's the one, Pop!" he cried, indicating the saddest looking one of the lot.

I watched them enter the shop, saw him lift forever from the companionship of his brethren, watched Pop peel a couple of dollars from a meager bankroll and observed them as they departed, the kid proudly leading the pup by an improvised rope harness.

The beginning of a beautiful friendship. On the corner Pop sent the pair on home while he repaired to a nearby speakeasy to fortify himself against Maw's wrath at the intrusion of a dawg in the home. But I felt, somehow, that Pop and the kid and the hound would win the day and that the little bone polisher eventually would be named "Ginger."

A WIFE'S REWARD

Richard Hinton Perry, who designed The Fountain of Neptune outside the Library of Congress, used to pay for his own amusement. His wife, a woman with no social connections, induced him, when they were first married, to do the portraits of several of her wealthy friends. Richard put such quality and character into the canvases that his studio was besieged by members of The Bradstreet Breed. He wanted to go ahead and hack statues out of marble, but his Missus was insistent that he ply his brush. Today he is recognized as one of the six outstanding portrait painters of the world.

HOTEL WINDOW DRESSING

When you hit town, land in the lobby of one of the gingerbread hotels and the clerk casually inquires if you have a "reservation." You don't get fussed. There's no room dressing. There are so many hotels in New York that most of them, even the largest, are operating at about 40 per cent capacity.

THE PRICE OF PROGRESS

DON'T BE IMPATIENT

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—All the way across the Atlantic on the liner George Washington, America's delegation bound for the London naval limitation conference never let a day pass without at least one wireless to the home folk not to be impatient—because there are lots of difficulties to be overcome, but the delegation positively is not coming back without a certain amount of bacon; more or less limitation; just how much of it is problematical but a modicum anyway.

So DO NOT BE IMPATIENT! Now the delegates are in London—Secretaries Stimson and Adams, Senators Reed and Robinson, Dwight W. Morrow and all their satellites—and the messages are more reassuring than ever. True, the difficulties are even worse than our negotiators expected them to be, but what of it? That delegation simply dotes on overcoming difficulties. Only—DON'T BE IMPATIENT!

Now, as a matter of fact, who has noticed many signs of violent impatience on the American people's part concerning the outcome of the London naval conference? I'll be darned if I have, here in Washington. It has not been mentioned in congress; at the Capitol building even the dull subject of prohibition is more talked about. The newspapers have printed a good many columns of armament limitation dispatches, but no one that I can discover has read any of them. I saw a movie of the delegates thrown on the screen at a cinema theater the other night, but the audience never chirped; apparently failed to recognize the quaint—though quite a stir and hearty round of applause greeted a shot of the sea-going brewery on the George Washington.

I cannot escape the suspicion that the American public is less excited over the pending disarmament conference than the delegates imagine it is. At that, it is not an altogether uninteresting gathering, if one will take the trouble to study it. For instance, the young robin signed by 82 members of the British parliament, urging John Bull's representatives at the meeting to urge the scrapping of all warships above 10,000 tons, is worth a moment's consideration.

Inasmuch as present-day battleships are around 32,000 tons, such an agreement would mean quite a reduction. Also, although the total membership in parliament is 615, a group of 82 is quite a sizable bloc to make so radical a suggestion. They undoubtedly signed in good faith, too, for all 82 were Laborites who are sincere pacifists. Just the same, the crafty British naval influence back of the idea is discernible. The joker is that England, with a base handy every few hundred miles all over the world, can do very well with plenty of small ships and no big ones, if she can get others to agree to the same program; whereas, Uncle Sam, with hardly any distant bases at all, has to have big vessels or they cannot carry fuel enough to travel far without putting into port to replenish—and they might be barred out of other ports than Uncle Sam's own, in wartime. Another thing that the American, British, French and Japanese delegates evidently cannot get through their noodles is that Italy under Mussolini is an altogether larger caliber power than she was a few years ago. They persist in thinking of her as next after France—and quite a long way after the latter.

On the opposite hand, the Italians now consider themselves as big as anyone—the same people but in a totally different frame of mind, which maybe really makes them different. At any rate, they say they would build as big a navy as England's if they could afford it, adding that they positively will have one as big as France's. If it takes their last lire. This is not in accord with any previous calculation and upsets everything.

It likewise would be a great comfort to all hands if each country could satisfy itself how much aviation will effect future sea warfare. If planes actually can sink everything afloat, as enthusiastic avirmen say they can, naturally there is no point in keeping up big surface fleets any longer, but most naval experts deny that they can—admitting that surface craft will be beaten without planes but maintaining that planes will be helpless without surface craft. No one truly knows—perhaps old-fashioned navy men are mere has-beens—perhaps aviators are over-confident. Peace time tests prove very little; it will take a war to settle the question.

The London conference CAN be mighty important if it DOES anything important. But will it? From all I can see, the delegates are wasting cable tolls urging the American people not to be impatient.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

One against a regiment and not one of the regiment left! Lizard-Beetle had eaten every last aphid up!

"How cruel!" cried Peter, who would have stopped the mad slaughter of tiny insects if he had known how. But Biffer and Uncle Merry Great Eye chuckled at the boy's horror.

"Lizard-Beetle isn't cruel at all, but kind!" cried Biffer, in his soldier cousin's defense. "Lizard-Beetle has done just the right thing. Let me tell you something boy. If Lizard-Beetle had left those greedy insects where they were when first he spied them, in no time at all they would have sucked up the life juice of the grasses and then the sweet timothy grass that we insects love so well would have withered and died. And don't you think for a moment that those little big eaters would have been satisfied with that single stalk they were on when Lizard-Beetle attacked! Not a bit of it. When they had finished with that they would have crawled on to the next and the next. And everywhere they went they would have left behind them. Listen, young Two-Legs! When all the red and white tops of the timothy grass were gone, we insects would miss them and mourn, but what of you Humans?"

Peter looked puzzled and Uncle Merry Great Eye took up the story. "You Humans use grass for some purpose," said he. "Wait a minute. Let me think!" Uncle Great Eye scratched his head with a claw. "Now I have it! Once when I was skulking beneath a berry bush on the edge of the meadow, watching Humans mow down the grass with a sharp knife, I overheard them call the yellow tops wheat, and the redtops fodder."

"And again I say Lizard-Beetle wasn't cruel, not even to the greedy ones. He pounced upon them before they guessed he was anywhere around, and gobbled them up. They never knew just what happened," added Biffer.

"Three cheers for Lizard-Beetle!" shrilled Uncle Merry Great Eye, throwing his cap in the air. Up went Biffer's hat, and Peter, who had changed his mind after learning the truth about the great little soldier, followed their example.

Spices should be bought in small quantities, for they lose their pungent flavor on being exposed to the air. Then you can buy them more frequently, and they will always be fresh.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Unanswered Letters

"DEAR DOCTOR: I feel hurt. You answer everybody's question but mine. And I am one of your most devoted admirers. I have watched carefully and eagerly, each word you write, but you have never answered my request. Is that kind, Dr. Lulu?"

"I am 52 years old. I reduced 45 pounds in about five months, going strictly by your diet. I feel wonderfully well and look a thousand times better, except that my neck looks bad; it is drawn and wrinkled. Can't you and won't you advise me please?" MRS. B."

I have an ill-defined feeling of depression most of the time, and it is due to the fact that I know such a large number of my valiant friends are going to be disappointed. Naturally, because of many thousands of letters I receive, only a few can be considered in the column. I recently have written something that anywhere near answers the question. I have to let the letter go, and, of course, it is absolutely impossible to answer questions personally. I'm sorry.

Now, about your neck, Mrs. B. In the first place, perhaps you reduced a little too rapidly, and you didn't exercise at the same time you were reducing. Is this true? After 30, it is wise to take special exercises for the neck, reducing or not reducing. And those special exercises are tensely the neck muscles, and moving the head backwards and forwards and to the sides; and another thing that gives good neck exercises are the Tummy Ten. When you do these, you'll notice how your neck muscles contract when you pull your legs up and your body down. Then you can massage with some cold cream. Although this will not cause fat to be deposited, it will help keep the skin supple. Massage up and down. Follow with an ice or ice-cold water rub.

You have to remember that after 45 it is normal to have a few wrinkles and if they haven't showed before on account of excess fat, they may show a little after the fat has been removed. What of it? Isn't it better to be healthier and happier, with a few wrinkles than it is to be unhealthy and have smooth moon face, with no expression? I have a friend who has a perfectly monstrous figure, she's fat, and her chief excuse is that her friends all think she looks older when she reduces! Maybe she does, but she's so fat now that her friends hate to be seen with her. And that is certainly not an enviable position. Furthermore, she's beginning to show the effects of her health.

It is not unusual at all, even in younger people to look drawn when reducing, but this drawn look always disappears after the reduction is back on the maintenance diet and it's always easy to plump up a little bit, if necessary. (It must be remembered that slight overweight is desirable in the young.)

Now I hope I am reinstated in your good graces, Mrs. B. Those who are in need of instructions on how to reduce or gain weight, may have our pamphlet on the subject. See column rules for obtaining this, as well as the article on the Tummy Ten.

Mrs. B. Your questions on supple hair are answered in our article on the subject. Your other questions are taken care of in our pamphlet on the Hygiene of the Tummy. See column rules for obtaining these.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column in their turn. Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand may be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the following "mail charge to help cover cost of printing and handling for each article wanted, two cents in coin; for each pamphlet, one cent in coin. The pamphlets are "Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, Kidney and Bladder Disorders." Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper. Write legibly, a not over 200 words. Tomorrow: Warning.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Experience from real life is better than any amount of advice gleaned from theories. One of my readers, noticing a letter in the column that interested her, writes to supplement my advice, for which I thank her most heartily.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: Permit me to offer a few words of warning to a disheartened wife—'Brown Eyes and Curly Hair'—of your columns, hoping to discourage what, in my mind, would be the greatest mistake of her life.

"Having had a dear friend whose life was almost shattered by a similar experience, I have become interested in her case and thought she might appreciate a letter of this kind.

"This girl, too, had a good husband and they were blessed with three lovely children and owned a comfortable home. She, being an attractive woman of pleasing personality, made many friends, especially of the opposite sex.

"One man in particular made it his business to tell her of her charms, and suggested that she was not duly appreciated by her husband. That is the usual line of speech of a man of that type. He continued to impose his attentions upon her at every opportunity, and she finally decided that he was right.

"She became very indifferent toward her husband, dissatisfied with her married life, and it must have hurt her husband more than she ever knew. A finer character never existed than he, yet she could not see it.

"She was just on the verge of leaving him for this other man when her husband became very ill. He lingered for about nine weeks, and did not seem to care whether he got well or not. During this time she was faithful and did all she could to relieve his suffering. It was too late. He passed away leaving only enough means to pay the doctor bills and funeral expenses.

"Now she was free her Prig Charming, who had made so many promises as to what he would do only she were free to marry him. He did not show up in her time of distress or offer aid of any kind.

"Several years have passed and she is still waiting. She has seven times expressed to me how hard she would be to have her husband back that she might ask his forgiveness and make amends.

"There have been hundreds of cases similar to the one above, a man that will suggest to a woman that she leave her home, husband and children to go with him to unknown land, would not hesitate to leave her any time for a new experience.

"Should you leave those dear kids and their lonely daddy behind for a man that you have known less than two months, my dear, if I fear that you will never forget yourself. Remember you have but only one side of the story. The woman may have an interesting one to late, too.

"Thank you, dear Virginia, I hope I have not taken up too much space and time.

"APPREHENSIVE. You have taken up space, a time to good advantage, dear Apprehensive, and I thank YOU for your little sermon, which I hope will benefit many.

HEART BROKEN: Tell sis not to be a "dog in the manger." If she broke off with the boy, she is going with someone else, there is no reason why you shouldn't, and got well or not. During this time

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Since I haven't written about different types of skin for a long, long time, I'm going to repeat myself and describe them again this week, even at the risk of being called bromide.

You need to remember facts about skins. Your own skin changes constantly—with the climate if you travel, with the weather as the seasons change. And reminding you to do certain things for it is as necessary as reminding you to go to bed early or to wear your rubbers when it rains. You know enough to do both of course, but you forget, or perhaps it is that you forget how really important they are.

First, let's consider the normal skin. You are fortunate if your skin is this type, as I have informed you before. This is the skin every woman would like to have, and it also is the type every woman can have if she will take the proper corrective care.

Soft, smooth, clear, fine—without blemish—the normal skin is lovely to look at and lovely to touch. Like the skin of a healthy child. What is the secret of skin such as this? Good circulation is the chief secret—a fresh, pure stream of healthy blood flowing through the tissues freely to cleanse and feed them, to keep skin active.

A famous poet, Walt Whitman, once said that beautiful blood is a beautiful brain were the soul of all personal beauty, and I am inclined to agree with him, if I meant, as I think he did, that healthy red blood and a healthy brain or nervous system direct and control the blood's course through the body, will keep skin and other organs nourished, revitalized and refreshed constantly. In other words, will keep the healthy—and healthy is beautiful foundation. These, then, are secrets of the normal skin: good blood, good circulation, good care.

Cleanse, stimulate and tone your skin daily with the proper preparations. A cleansing cream made of normal skins; a mildly stimulating skin-clearing cream; a skin-toning lotion also created especially for the skin that is normal. Just these three preparations used daily, either in one treatment or separately (you may leave your skin clear cream on all night) will prolong the normal skin's beauty almost indefinitely.

Washing should supplement use of cleansing cream. Use a good penetrative soap preparation (not an ordinary soap) with plenty of tepid water the wreckage was done in defiance of instructions from Dr. Ben F. Coffin, Wyandotte County coroner, the coroner informed International News Service today.

CAUSE IS OBSCURED WHEN GROUND CREWS DESTROY WRECKAGE

"What steps will be taken toward prosecuting the guilty party, I do not know," Dr. Coffin said. "This phase of the situation has been placed in the hands of the county attorney."

Dr. Coffin will hold a coroner's inquest late today or tomorrow to attempt to determine the cause of the crash.

"It may take us two or three days, however, to assemble enough evidence to conduct an investigation," he added. "I understand there was not much evidence left when employees of the airline finished destroying the wrecked plane."

"I am astonished that officials of so large an aviation company would permit this to be done in violation of the law."

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Authorities today began an investigation of the crash of a plane here late yesterday which brought death to Gordon Smith, student pilot, and Jack Loesby, Boston aviator. The plane suddenly went into a nose dive and fell to earth.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—A thorough investigation into the crash of a monoplane of the Central Airlines near Fairfax airport, Kansas City, resulting in death to five persons will be made immediately, it was stated today at the offices of the aviation corporation, of which the Central Airlines is a subsidiary.

Operating officials at the Fairfax airport have been asked for a detailed report of the latest air disaster. Pending receipt of the report, officials of the aviation corporation had no comment to make.

Officials of the big passenger flying lines in New York refused this morning to comment on the Kansas City crash, inasmuch as their own companies were not involved. It was indicated, however, that the recent series of air accidents, with the attendant heavy death toll, is causing no little disquietude in aviation circles.

CENTRAL HIGH BOYS TO GIVE MINSTRELS EARLY NEXT MONTH

Under the direction of William Hugh Miller, musical director in the Xenia public schools, the Boys' Glee Club of Xenia Central High School will present the annual "Blue and White Minstrels" in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium Wednesday night, February 5 at 8 o'clock.

The first half of the performance will be devoted to the minstrel show and the second half to a series of about eight vaudeville acts.

An original song entitled "Mississippi Moonlight" will be a feature of the minstrel. Mr. Miller, the director, and John William Collins, a senior, composed the words and music together.

Fred Clark, a junior, will act as interlocutor in the minstrel and solo numbers of popular songs will be given by Ralph Baldwin, Charles Adair and Robert Derrick. Ronald Atkinson, Harold Bull, John Pulliam and Robert Randall will be the end men.

Reserved seats for the production will be available at Sohn's drug store beginning at noon next Monday. Tickets for either the lower floor or the balcony will cost 50 cents.

READ THIS FIRST:

At the close of the World War, Lieutenant Rex Dallard, Dr. Frank Gordon, Nurse Margery Lynne and Patricia Blair sail for New York to thwart the plots of Herbert Maxwell, who is planning to make away with a huge estate to which Patricia and her twin brother, Jimmy, are heirs, Jimmy, a victim of apoplexy, has disappeared, Maxwell holding him, and keeping him under cover, while he presents a fake brother in claiming half of the estate. Nurse Margery Lynne meets Jimmy unexpectedly in a New York street, but he is accompanied by a tough escort who knocks her out. After coming to in a hospital Margery is joined by her friends, who discuss ways and means of thwarting Maxwell.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX

On the second day following, the evening of December, Margery was pronounced well enough to be taken home.

On the evening of the day she returned, Rex Dallard and Dr. Gordon visited the Lynne family—and the Lynne visitor.

Nothing as yet in the way of locating Jimmy had been accomplished by his detective friend, was the lieutenant's regretful reply to the question put to him by Rex. "I must start the action without any opening."

But January first, as events disclosed, was destined to produce plenty of action in the affairs of the Blair twins.

The rather important ceremony of the transfer of the Blair holdings from the former administrator to the heirs on their twenty-fifth birthday was scheduled to take place at ten o'clock in the forenoon in the directors' room of the trust company, in whose safety deposit boxes the Blair securities were kept.

New Year's eve in the old Lynne home. The cheer of warm friendships and kindly wishes lay over all the household. Lieutenant Dallard and Dr. Gordon had called to discuss the important matter that had been the chief subject of all their talks for many weeks.

Margery had recovered almost entirely from the blow of the black-jack. Only a small scar on the scalp, just above the line of her white forehead, but hidden under the thick, golden hair, remained as evidence of that afternoon's tragedy.

Standing out clear and distinct in her memory was the face of the young man she had known first in France just as "Jimmy," and later as Jimmy Blair, Pat's twin brother. That he was Pat's twin brother every line and characteristic of the boyish countenance, from the whimsical and straight nose to the dark brown eyes, even with their dull expression, gave unmistakable testimony to look at Pat's vitally alive face was to see the reflected image of her twin brother, Jimmy, before his injury. It was the latter around whom, as usual, the talk revolved. And it was Margery who, as on a recent occasion, gave voice to a remark that opened the way to a new field.

"Listen, fellow schemers!" she enjoined them straightening up suddenly from her perch on the side arm of the big upholstered chair where Pat was half sitting, half lying. "Has it occurred to anyone here that Maxwell may not be at all surprised tomorrow to see his ward, Patricia Blair, whom he is supposed to be thinking is still in Paris?"

She paused tentatively. The lieutenant, watching her, grinned. "Go ahead," he encouraged, "shoot!"

"Well, then," she said, "it's just this way: It strikes me we've all been letting a lot of grass grow under our feet since we landed in New York. We had agreed, before we left Paris, that if the Leclerc couple had disobeyed orders in releasing Pat when they did, which would have meant they had gotten 'cold feet,' that Maxwell was unaware of the fact and still believed Pat to be a prisoner there."

"Now, listen to this in particular," she went on, earnestly, as she noted the attention her talk was commanding. "We had also decided before we left Paris, if you remember, that it was quite likely Maxwell's order that Pat was to be released in time for her to reach New York by January first."

"Well," she continued, after a slight pause, "it seems to me that we may have taken too much for granted; that it is quite likely we made a mistake regarding Maxwell's plans. Supposing, for instance, that he just intended to hold Pat there in Paris until he had passed off his substitute for Jimmy, had the transfer made and everything, and was planning to return to Paris and dispose of Pat? Has that possibility occurred to you, Rex?" she asked, grinning at the lieutenant.

"Yes, Margie!" replied the lieutenant, grinning back at her. "But it also occurred to Frank, too, that Maxwell would not be such a fool as to attempt putting that transfer across without Patricia Blair's presence on the spot, as the well-spoken, big club in political circles, and be very influential, but when it comes to the transfer of a twenty million dollar estate from executor to heirs, those heirs usually are represented by a lawyer, or lawyers. It isn't quite as simple as the transfer of a deed to a house and lot."

"The probabilities are, Margie," continued Rex, "that Maxwell left word with the Leclercs to release Pat on a date early enough to enable her to reach New York by January first. But they, for some reason unknown to us, let her go before that date. By the rule of plain logic, Maxwell did not order her release to take effect when it did as he knew Gordon, yourself and I were still in Paris, and it doesn't stand to reason that he was perfectly willing for her to meet and talk with us before that date. At that, however, I shouldn't be at all surprised to learn that he is aware of her presence here in New York right now. I haven't been looking upon Herbert Maxwell as a dumb-bell, by any chance, Margie."

"Well, has it also occurred to you?" quizzed Margie, obviously determined to get a rise of some nature from this wise Solomon by whom nothing, seemingly, had been overlooked, "that he, in all likelihood, knows all about my experience in seeing Jimmy, how I tagged along and got 'beamed' finally?"

"What possibilities, Rex?" asked Pat quickly, the gleam of a new hope lighting up her dark eyes. "What possible result might Margie's recognition of Jimmy have in Maxwell's plans?"

From where Margery sat on the side arm of Pat's chair her head was considerably above and behind the other girl's line of vision. And Dallard sat directly in front of Pat, thus facing them both. At Pat's question he raised his eyes and instantly caught the cautioning signal from Margery, a slight shake of her head. Then, before he could frame even the start of a reply to the question asked, Margery was speaking for him.

"Why, don't you see, dear?" she said, in quick explanation. "Maxwell would not dare put Jimmy out of the way now, since he realizes I know that Jimmy was brought over from Paris!"

Don't you suppose his henchman, that roughneck who knocked Jimmy down and hit me, has told him all about me—also about Jimmy's odd behavior?"

But Margery knew, before she had finished her question, that she had given Rex a new idea to mull over, a new problem on which to sharpen his Dublin college wits.

"Suffering Moses!" the ejaculation carried unqualified surprise. That it should have escaped him, this Jimmy episode—that its possibilities had not already been weighed and considered was a jolt to the lieutenant's ego. He looked at Margery, and his eyes grew big.

"You've certainly said something, Margie Lynne!" he answered, and he spoke in a tone respectful and sincere. "And I admit right here," he added, with a grin, "that I, for one, had given the matter—that is, Maxwell's probable knowledge of your recognition of Jimmy—no thought until this minute. Now, you mention it I can see the possibilities."

"What possibilities, Rex?" asked Pat quickly, the gleam of a new hope lighting up her dark eyes. "What possible result might Margie's recognition of Jimmy have in Maxwell's plans?"

From where Margery sat on the side arm of Pat's chair her head was considerably above and behind the other girl's line of vision. And Dallard sat directly in front of Pat, thus facing them both. # The Theater

This department is proud and boastful today because it has a letter from a bona fide reader. The letter needs no explanation and follows:

I have just re-read the criticism of the last presentation of the Xenia Little Theater and feel that it is a little bit out of perspective with this organization could or would be unsympathetic or untactful as make such a criticism. The Little Theater Guild is a d of earnest workers who are ng to put this work on the best plane. On account of ad-

Estelle re tly won a beauty contest in w York and, it is said, certain kie barons had magnanimously erred her a chance to try her k as another Janet Gaynor. The le Bostoner put them in sec s by replying, "No, thank you, d sir."

While the criticism just read ell composed as far as words concerned and the characters ationed certainly deserved all praise they were given, it d have been more helpful to e given a write-up of the com e presentation and not to e mentioned any special char s, than to have stressed the k of one or more and not to e mentioned some who were ally good.

The critic is evidently not far lar with the inner workings of Guild for in this instance the t play was chosen two months and due to the inability to l a suitable play for a com on piece, which was "So's r Old Antiques", this play was sen only two weeks before the rformance and considering the rt time given and the use of eperienced talent, it was bea done. Every character did ery best and deserved being ably mentioned. Let us not ourage young talent by adverse ism."

This department occupies the ue position, in this instance, t is best described by "sitting top of the world." Guild mem s will admit that there was con erable criticism among them of ews of their plays given in t eir during last season. This season, as expected, there e no complimentary tickets for e press and no invitations to re w the plays. The Guild, on the er hand, selected its own re w from within its own ranks. ## SLOT MACHINES TO BE DESTROYED BY JUDGE S. C. WRIGHT

Holding that two mint-vending machines confiscated by Sheriff Ohmer Tate's deputies at Rest Haven Park, Dayton-Xenia Pike, last December 12, were gambling devices, Probate Judge S. C. Wright has ordered them destroyed, he announced Monday. The court directed, however, that money found in the old slot machines when they are opened be returned by the sheriff to Mrs. Vera Duellman, who operates Rest Haven.

The order was made by Judge Wright in deciding an application filed January 22 by Walker Zimmerman for return of the machines on the ground they were his property and not gambling devices. He asserted they were being operated at Rest Haven under a contract. After being cited into court Mrs. Duellman pleaded guilty to permitting the operation of gambling devices at her place of business and drew the minimum fine under the law.

LOCAL SCOUTS TO RECEIVE BADGES

Interest in the "Achievement Round-Up" sponsored by Tecumseh Council, Boy Scouts of America, based on reports from Greene County troops, indicates that a large percentage of local Scouts will receive the gold plate badges to be awarded at the Area Court of Honor ceremony at Springfield, February 3.

A national Scout executive will be the principal speaker and will make the awards to the Scouts. The exercises are being held in conjunction with the observance of the week as the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Scout movement in the United States. The public is invited to be present for the ceremony and parents of Scouts are particularly urged to attend.

Xenia Scouts will also attend a special union church service arranged by the Xenia Ministerial Association for Sunday, February 3.

EAST HIGH NOTES

The East High Athletic Association wishes to invite the public to another basketball game Wednesday night, January 29, beginning at 8:15 o'clock. The game will be between the Hi Y team of Dayton, O., and the East High Cubs. Last year this team beat the Cubs with a score of 22-0 which is a defeat that really got under the skin of the East High team. This year it is out for revenge with blood in its eyes. Be sure and see the same as it promises to be even bigger and better than the one played against Covington. There will be a good preliminary.

BOY SCOUT Activities

In preparation for the grand investiture of Boy Scouts, from all parts of the Tecumseh Council, Boy Scouts of America, which will mark the opening of the twentieth anniversary celebration of the founding of the Scout movement in America, Dr. Austin Patterson, chairman of the local committee, has called a meeting for next Monday night, February 3, at 7 o'clock at Central High School.

At that time local leaders will make plans for the meeting which is scheduled for 7:30 p. m. Saturday, February 3, at Wittenberg College Physical Education Building in Springfield. That event will mark the opening of the special anniversary week celebration, which extends from February 7 to 14.

Immediately following this business session, Monday evening, Louis Hammerle, chairman of the Court of Honor, will be in charge of the Board of Review which will examine local Scouts who are to receive badges at the meeting February 3. The local Scouts are instructed to report at the high school at 7:55 p. m. Monday, February 3.

Although the budget of the council does not permit furnishing badges to the Scouts from such funds, through the generosity of a number of friends of Scouting in the Area, it has been made possible to give the badges at the investiture free of charge to the Scouts. In addition, the second and first class badges will be gold-plated.

The field executive has announced that the evening of February 3 will be the final meeting of the Board of Review, prior to the investiture service. That evening will also mark the zero hour for the Round-Up quota in connection with the anniversary week observance. All applications for ten-foot, second class, first class, merit badges, subscriptions to Boy's Life, and new leaders must be in at that time.

Plans for the anniversary week program so far are imposing. At the grand investiture services at the opening of the observance, Dr. Geo. J. Fisher, New York, deputy chief Scout executive from national headquarters, will present the badges to the Scouts earning them. Also at this meeting on February 3, a Boy Scout Band will play for the grand entry of the local Scouts and leaders. It is anticipated that approximately 1,000 Boy Scouts and leaders will take part in the services.

The Boy Scout minstrel show from Wilmington that recently entertained a large gathering there, is to be on the program. Following a few events of this nature, Dr. Fisher, with the help of the Area Court of Honor, will present all of the badges.

District Commissioner S. N. McClellan, who has been receiving reports from local troops, believes many Greene County boys will receive honors at this time. Commissioner McClellan says the following report has been submitted by local Scout masters:

Troop No. 40—E. A. Roberts—Total, twenty-eight Scouts.
Troop No. 41—R. H. Kingsbury—Total, eighteen Scouts.
Troop No. 43—Rev. Russell Burdett—Total, eight Scouts.
Troop No. 45—E. L. Blackburn—Total, fifteen Scouts.
Troop No. 53—T. C. Haydock, New Burlington—Total, twelve Scouts.

Troop No. 54—Clarence Bay, Osborn—Total, sixteen Scouts.
Troop No. 56—Merrill Dawson, Yellow Springs—Total, nineteen Scouts.

Troop No. 62—Ernest Blackburn, O. S. and S. O. Home—Total, thirty Scouts.

With this large number of Greene County boys receiving recognition, it is expected that many local friends and parents will be present as the services of February 3 will be open to the public. In all probability, four Eagle Badges, which is the highest award in Scouting, will be presented. Two of these honors will go to local boys, namely, Lester Price, Troop 41, and John Kennedy, of 56.

The men from Xenia who have been requested to serve on the Area Court on this occasion are Supt. Louis Hammerle, Arthur V. Miller, Dr. W. A. Galloway, John Vanderpool and Dr. H. B. McElree.

COURT DISMISSES FIFTEEN CHARGES

Fifteen affidavits on file in Probate Court, including six which charge a violation of the liquor laws, have been ordered dismissed by Judge S. C. Wright, a majority for want of prosecution.

Judge Wright dismissed affidavits against the following persons: Arthur Evans, operating an auto while intoxicated; Harry Spencer, selling liquor; Charles Mowen, assault; H. Glenn Shephard, keeping a disorderly house; Henry or Oscar Milton, selling liquor; Samuel Guenther, possessing liquor; Chas. Duzmyer, manufacturing liquor; Orville Frye, reckless driving; George Jones, Henry Everhart, non-support of aged parents; May Arnold, assault and battery; A. R. Reed, driving an auto equipped with fictitious licenses, and Robert Ball, possessing liquor.

At the recent meeting of the executive officers of Tecumseh Council, Boy Scouts of America, a report was given for the activities of the past year. This report showed that great strides forward had been made by the local Scout organization. In the Tecumseh Council there are now over twelve hundred active Boy Scouts.

In the counties other than Clark which are Champaign, Greene, Clinton and Logan, there are five hundred and seventy-six boys receiving the daily benefits of this character influencing program. In these counties during the past year eight new troops were organized. The leadership of all these troops is of the highest calibre the men having either completed a training course in scouting or plan to attend a course of this nature within the next month.

A report from national headquarters impressed upon the local men the fact that the local Scout organization is one of the three leading councils in Ohio, Kentucky, and West Virginia. The program given the boys is not only outstanding
